

The value of using a local ISP is tremendous. For years I subscribed to PacBell ISP. I received no personal attention when a technical problem occurred, and had to wait long periods of time for the automated reply. For the past several years the local ISP has understood specific problems, and led me through corrections. There has been no long wait, and calls have been answered by a real person.